

January 28, 2015

NEWS

Village recognizes Civilian Patrol

By Micah Danney mdanney@liherald.com

COURTESY VILLAGE OF VALLEY STREAM

Courtesy Village of Valley Stream The Civilian Patrol's executive board members accepted a citation from the village at the group's luncheon on January 11. From left are treasurer George Catalanotto, webmaster Frederick Jung, Mayor Ed Fare, President Ralph Polverino, Vice President Christine Kelly, Director of Operations David Sabatino and Village Justice Robert Bogle.

Mayor Ed Fare and Justice Robert Bogle presented a citation to the Valley Stream Civilian Patrol at the group's annual luncheon on January 11, commending members for their dedication to helping keep their community safe.

"By serving as the eyes and ears of the community, you greatly contribute to the welfare of your neighbors," Fare said.

The all-volunteer group is a neighborhood watch organization that patrols the community and reports to the proper authorities when there appears to be a need for intervention.

"Your diligence is definitely an asset to local law enforcement," Bogle said.

The group's membership has waned as many longtime members have aged, so the organization is seeking new ones. To learn more, email vscp@valleystreamcivilianpatrol.org.

This article is reproduced with permission of the Valley Stream Herald - Issue Date: 01/28/2015